Research Interests

Luca Kristóf, PhD is a senior research fellow at the Centre for Social Sciences, Budapest. Presently she is the vice-director of the Institute of Sociology at the CSS. She earned her PhD at the Budapest Corvinus University in 2011. Her main research interests include elite studies, political sociology, cultural and sustainable consumption, and social stratification and integration. To support her research, she has over the years been awarded an HAS Postdoctoral Fellowship, a Bolyai Fellowship and an NKFIH Young Researcher's Grant. Her monograph on the Hungarian cultural elite, published in 2021, won the Polányi Prize of the Hungarian Sociological Society. In addition to numerous journal articles and book chapters in Hungarian, she has published in international journals such as Poetics, the International Journal of Cultural Policy and East European Politics and Societies. She is a Patronus Teacher at the Széchenyi College for Advanced Studies, member of the Sociology Committee of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, country expert for Compendium Cultural Policies & Trends, and reporter for the CSS's scientific dissemination podcast.
